

I selected this assignment as the weakest one since it turned out to be quite hard for me to start it and even to finish it. I believe I was capable of understanding the content and each author we checked well, but when I had to put into words that knowledge, it was difficult to make the links between the three authors I chose for this essay. Furthermore, as I had a hard time making the connections, I tried to delay the starting of the writing so when I had only a few days left to write it, I got really stressed by it.

When I received the first correction of the assignment, I found many “silly” mistakes related to grammar, vocab –Spanish translation- and even spelling. Hence, I made a promise to myself not to leave the work for the end anymore; otherwise, I would keep repeating the same mistakes which I should not be making at this point of the major.

In terms of content, I think I did well even though I definitely could have done much better. But, again, I think that weakness is related to the lack of time I had since I did the work in a rush as I had only a few days left.
